

Important announcement from Ambika Mathur, Vice Provost and Dean of the Graduate School:

UTSA's Graduate School understands the challenges faced by students world-wide in taking the GRE test during the COVID-19 pandemic. To make it easier for our applicants, the Graduate School has consulted with all graduate programs at UTSA, and with the approval of the University of Texas System, has made the decision to temporarily suspend consideration of GRE and GMAT scores for admission to its graduate programs until further notice.

In the absence of test scores, affected graduate admission committees will need to review each application carefully and temporarily modify the weights applied to the remaining admission criteria. The same overarching goal must be maintained: to only admit a student whose application materials demonstrate a likelihood to be successful in the graduate program and, ultimately, in her/his chosen career. We thank faculty and administrators in appreciating the value of applying holistic reviews of all applications to their graduate programs.

For more information on the novel coronavirus and preventative measures, visit utsa.edu/coronavirus/.