2. The Graduate Faculty shall be composed of Graduate Faculty, Graduate Faculty Scholars, Graduate Faculty Adjoint, and Special Members.

- a. Graduate Faculty

Full-time tenure-track and full-time tenured faculty actively meeting their program's qualifications for sole chairing dissertations for doctoral students will be recognized as Graduate Faculty. If the program graduate program committees agree, Graduate Faculty from one department may chair dissertations for doctoral students in departments across the institution, as long as the graduate program committees of the Graduate Faculty members home department and the second requesting department agree.

Full-time tenure-track and full-time tenured faculty members actively meeting their program's qualifications for teaching graduate courses, serving on thesis and dissertation committees (where applicable), and chairing theses (where applicable) for Master's students will be recognized as Graduate Faculty Scholars.

The distinction between Graduate Faculty and Graduate Faculty Scholars is for use only in determining eligibility to serve as the sole chair of a dissertation committee. Though activities related to the distinction ( e.g. chairing MA thesis and chairing dissertation committees) should be considered in determining faculty workload agreements, the distinction itself, and related distinctions relevant to adjunct faculty and special members, is not eligible for consideration in determining faculty workload agreements.

Not all departments have doctoral programs. This does not preclude the faculty in those departments from (a) eligibility for appointment as Graduate Faculty Members or (b) serving on doctoral dissertation chairs where appropriate, in order to promote interdisciplinarity.

Full-time tenure-track and full-time tenured faculty members who wish to be considered for Graduate Faculty status may request their program/department Graduate Faculty members vote on their status. Each program/department sets its own criteria for Graduate Faculty status, in line with department expectations for research and scholarly activity. Graduate Faculty Scholars may request a vote for Graduate Faculty status annually. Once recognized as Graduate Faculty, that status will remain in effect until the next academic program review. Denial of a request for Graduate Faculty status may be appealed to the Graduate Council. A denial by the Graduate Council may be appealed to the Graduate School Dean.

Adjunct faculty members are eligible for appointment as Graduate Faculty Adjunct upon recommendation by the Graduate Faculty of the department where they serve and/or the appropriate Graduate Program Committee and approval by the Graduate Council. The status for Graduate Faculty Adjunct members is 5 years, unless renewed. Graduate Faculty Adjunct members may teach graduate courses, serve on graduate committees, and be the sole chair of thesis and dissertation committees.

b. Special Members

University of Texas at San Antonio faculty members, who do not hold a full-time tenured or tenure-track appointment, including fixed-term track, research, emeritus, visiting, adjunct, or part-time faculty members or individuals outside the university, are eligible for appointment as Special Members of the Graduate Faculty upon recommendation by (1) the Graduate Faculty of the department where they serve and/or the members of the appropriate Graduate Program Committee, (2) recommendation by the Chair of the appropriate Graduate Program Committee, (3) recommendation by the appropriate Department Chair, (4) recommendation by the appropriate College Dean, and (5) approval by the Graduate Council. Special membership does not transfer between departments, and unique applications must be made for Special Membership in each requesting department. Special Members may teach graduate courses, serve on graduate committees, and co-chair thesis and dissertation committees.

Special Membership does not grant Special Members the ability to serve as the sole chair of master's thesis and doctoral dissertation committees. Special Members may serve as the sole chair of a master's thesis committee via petition to the Graduate Council and approval of the Graduate Council and Dean of the Graduate School. The status of Special Members will be for 3 years, unless renewed. The requesting department and the Graduate Council may delimit the term of service to a period of less than 3 years and/or may delimit duties of Special Members in regards to teaching and service on thesis and dissertation committees to correspond to extraordinary department or program need or to special circumstances, such as if the applicant for Special Membership does not possess the terminal degree in a discipline or field of inquiry directly associated with the requesting department.
